

I am against deregulating broadband industry.
Broadband should be still regulated because when speaking about the home access, there are only two alternatives, the regional local phone company or the cable TV company in each region, both of them have virtual monopoly. Deregulation should be done only when there are more than three alternatives in most of the areas.